

Bevan Cellars

Dear Friends,

Usually Russell writes our release letters, but since the Sauvignon Blanc is one of my favorite wines I told him that I wanted to write this one. He did add some comments and an update about an exciting change at the bottom, so make sure that you read all the way through.

We're bottling the 2011 Sauvignon Blanc on February 6th and I'm really excited about this vintage. There are the tropical notes you've come to expect from our Sauvignon Blanc along with the rich texture, with delicate notes of grapefruit and nice acidity that keep the wine refreshing.

We have a bit less of the 2011 Sauvignon Blanc, so don't wait until the weather is warm to order, and guys, if you haven't ordered your 09's please don't wait much longer. A couple of the smaller production wines and Ontogeny are almost gone.

As always, if anyone finds themselves in our neighborhood please contact us so that we can show you the estate vineyard and taste through some wines. Our contact information is below, and you know that there is nothing that we love more than to enjoy some amazing wine and food with guests.

All the best,

Victoria De Crescenzo

A quick hijack of Victoria's release letter with some notes from 2011, and some major changes.

A few of our lots from 2011 are really special: Two Cabernet lots from the Harbison Vineyard, block one and the front part of block two, are stunning. The Tench Vineyard Merlot is a decadent chocolate bomb, and Moaveni Vineyard Syrah, clone 470, is also amazing. Vineyard X's Cabernet Franc is already showing fresh herbs and pure violets, and is easily my assistant winemaker's favorite lot. The only given is that we will have a Harbison Vineyard designated Cabernet Sauvignon and a Vineyard X blend. Other than that, the 2011 reds are a jigsaw puzzle that will take the next 14 months to put together. In 2012 we will be adding at least one very special vineyard that we had to fight for, along with a new varietal or two.

In preparation for all of our growth we have made a couple of major moves. In January, Victoria left her full-time job to concentrate on Bevan Cellars, and on April 1st I am doing the same. We have always intended to travel and be able to pour our wines in person for those of you who have made our dream possible, but our day jobs always got in the way. No more. We are already making plans to go to Texas, Minneapolis, New York and Florida. We are searching for venues and other markets so if you have any recommendations please let us know and, as always, thank you for helping us fulfill our dream.

Eat, drink and be merry,

Russell Bevan
